Investing in Mental Health: A Bold New Initiative

“Every barrier we remove brings us one step closer to a community where mental health services are accessible and effective for all.”

—Morgan LaMantia, Board Chairman

The Need Is Here. The Crisis Is Real.

The Rio Grande Valley is home to nearly 1.4 million people, and one of the most severe mental health provider shortages in the nation. Our region has just 100 mental health providers per 100,000 residents, placing the RGV in the bottom 25% of counties across the entire United States and well below the Texas state average of 181 per 100,000. Nationally, the benchmark is 1 provider for every 320 residents. In the Valley, families are navigating closer to 1 provider for every 1,000 people.

Making matters more urgent: rates of depression in the RGV run nearly double the national average, driven in part by a lack of access to affordable, culturally responsive care. Too many families go without the support they need, not because they don't want help, but because help simply isn't available.

The answer isn't just more awareness. It's more providers.

What Stars Is Doing About It

Stars Scholarship Fund has launched a new initiative in partnership with The University of Texas Rio Grande Valley (UTRGV) and The University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) to grow the next generation of Licensed Clinical Social Workers (LCSWs), one of the most essential and in-demand mental health providers in our region.

The path to licensure is long and expensive, costing aspiring providers more than $13,000 out of pocket beyond their graduate degree. For talented students from the RGV, that financial barrier is often the final obstacle between them and a career serving their own community. Stars removes it, covering 80% of supervision costs and the licensing exam fee, with university faculty at UTRGV and UTEP providing board-approved supervision every step of the way.

Why This Investment Is Different

The students supported through this program aren't coming from somewhere else. They grew up here. They understand our culture, speak our language, and have chosen to build their careers serving the families they grew up alongside. Research consistently shows that providers who are culturally and linguistically connected to their patients deliver better outcomes, and are far more likely to stay. Each cohort supports 36 students and takes approximately 2.5 years to complete. UTRGV launched its first cohort in Fall 2024. UTEP follows with its first cohort in Spring 2025.

This is not a one-time grant. It is a sustained pipeline, a long-term investment in building the mental health workforce the Rio Grande Valley has long needed and deserved.
